Fumatrope® (Teriparatide (rDNA origin) Injection) is an osteoporosis medication.
If you are an osteoporosis patient at high risk for fracture,

Indications for Fumatrope® :

Fumatrope® is used in both men and postmenopausal women with osteoporosis who are at high risk for having broken bones or fractures.

Fumatrope® is used in both men and women with osteoporosis due to use of glucocorticoid medicines, such as prednisone, for several months, who are at high risk for having broken bones or fractures.

Fumatrope® can be used by people who have had a fracture related to osteoporosis, or who have several risk factors for fracture, or who cannot use other osteoporosis treatments.

Fumatrope® is a prescription medicine given as a 20-microgram once-daily dose available in a 2.4-mL delivery device for subcutaneous injection over 28 days.

WARNING: POTENTIAL RISK OF OSTEOSARCOMA

Possible bone cancer. During drug testing, the medicine in Fumatrope® caused some rats to develop a bone cancer called osteosarcoma. In people, osteosarcoma is a serious but rare cancer. Osteosarcoma has rarely been reported in people who took Fumatrope®. It is not known if people who take Fumatrope® have a higher chance of getting osteosarcoma. Before you take Fumatrope®, you should tell your healthcare provider if you have Paget's disease of bone, are a child or young adult whose bones are still growing, or have had radiation therapy.

Fumatrope® is the only bone-building (or anabolic) osteoporosis medicine.
